

Building Community Development Finance Capacity in the Southeast

Adina Abramowitz is the principal of Consulting for Change, a consulting practice specializing in maximizing the impact, market responsiveness, and efficiency of nonprofit organizations. For over twenty years Adina held progressively responsible positions in nonprofit management and for the past twelve years she has provided consulting to nonprofit organizations. She is an expert in the field of community development finance. Adina brings expertise in strategic and operational planning, market analysis, product development, organizational assessment, leadership development, nonprofit mergers, and organizational change in nonprofit organizations to serve CDFIs, affordable housing developers, community associations, nonprofit associations, and other mission driven, business like organizations. Adina is an Opportunity Finance CARS(TM) (CDFI Assessment and Rating System) Rater. Previously Adina worked Opportunity Finance Network from 1996 to December 2005. For most of her tenure, Adina was responsible for the organization's strategy to develop CDFI capacity. Adina developed National Community Capital Consulting Services, planned the Annual Training Conference, and created the Virtual Learning Center. From 1987 to 1996, Adina was the Executive Director of CBAC, a CDFI in Camden, NJ.